Sabath Evening 3d July

Dear Nellie I think you will be some surprised to see this letter as probablely you never expected I should write again. - It will be useless & worse for me to say any thing by way of excuse, or explination - you know how much is for me to do every way "besides (as I have told you before) the care of all the Churches". Now in regard to writing the case is altered - they are all cleared out at your house, no one left to write to you - now I will "remember them in bonds" as you cannot hear from Weymouth unless I do write. Your mother went to Boston and carried Anne, a basket of goodies a box of Cherries & Henrys Fine Peice, which he was wanted so much. Emma went with her Thursday about half an hour after they left, & they drove up to the door at the same time. I should have said this morning yesterday - Saturday morning July 2d. Henry drove your mother out, & I had a note from Anne she said Henry was looking very delicate very, but that he seemed in a quieter happier mood than when at Weymouth. She thinks he may probablely come down for a night. Should they come I will be on hand & do for all for us I can. Anne said the feet better than she had any day since her ill turn & she seemed quite recovered on Friday. She was down here, but I conclude she or some of them have written to you, about Warrens going and the Doctor knows - I must confine myself to Weymouth. I am sure I do not want to hear from them at all while here as at Groton. The trying weather has been hard for Priscilla. She thinks she is not nearly as well as last year at this time & on some accounts I do not think myself she is. She has not as much strength, & more difficulty in walking, but she has not been out as much, and rode more to speak of in comparison of last summer, I must do something, I believe as I have just written to have that she was better when taking Nervo-Pathic, she has taken none this nearly a quite 2 months, but how to get any I know not. O for money to do what I want to, & if I know any thing of myself I do not want "to consume it upon my lusts". Enough of this any thing but filling up a letter with complaints. Last week I attended two Rhemedial lectures at the Annual meeting house Fowler was the lecturer; & I was much interested, I heard four heads examined. Sam. Cook, & Jake Allen the first night - Mr Pope & Mr John Cushing the last night. I think there is something in it, I wish I could tell you something of what he said of them, but cannot take up time & paper. Last Friday too I went to East Abington to the annual meeting of the Plymouth A. S. Society Anne was too ill to go, & I went with Sister Pierce notwithstanding there was a Preparatory Lecture on that day. The meeting was Thursday not Friday. When we got to South Weymouth meeting house E. Richards wife & daughter joined us, & in a mile more Spurwin & Collins drove up, & we crowded at Mr Adams meeting house in style. The was a full meeting in the morning, & more in the afternoon The President Mr Clay in the chair, & Sidney Gay.

Secretary pro-tem. Lunched here his wife & children there. He told his story, & as he had to do it in short hand it was well told. There were many resolutions on the business committee. We offered 5 connected ones on the revivals. Old Seth Sprague one to this effect that congress had no more right to legislate for slavery than against it. The mover made a short speech, which was answered by Whiting in comdable of a speech besides speaking several times afterward in short ones, my opinion at the time was that he intended to take up the time, but I might be wrong, for we heard no more of him, except for a minute in the afternoon. Bishop was there also, he never opened his mouth but employed himself in the afternoon in telling Mrs Ford's little nieces of getting his wife & children. We dined with us at Sen Reeds & I should think was trying to get back, by us I mean Grimes, the Richmonds, the Lanes, & myself. In the afternoon Grimes spoke in an admirable manner to his revival Res. Collins also supported them. Sen Reed the old fat man you know spoke and was cut up most awfully about the Res. themselves, but could not like what grew out of them. Mr May also spoke in remedy of the same manner, you know how he would speak. Mr Penn went really wholly with Grimes, & was rather surprised at it. I don't mean he spoke. Collins spoke better than usual and to great acceptance from appearances. Adjourned at half past 6 o'clock. no evening session. Collins Mr Penn & I took tea at a Mr Powels - no not tea for we had only cold Water, but then we had every thing else. 12 from Plymouth, had took their and left before we got there. I cannot by collect that you had the head-ache. & that he got sick at New Bedford. I am anxious his Gloves failed you. I would be glad to say more about the meeting, but you will see all in the Lib. We held our quarterly meeting a week last Thursday at James Thayers - 12 present I believe. Anne Wite a circular which the Society voted to print about 2 8 was issued on the spot, one to have 3 or 4 hundred copys, to put with every family. it is very good. Parker & Phebe send much love - & more if I could find room for it

The meeting at James Thayers was a good one, Mercia Burnell was there. She was staying at her sisters Mrs Thayers - by the way Mrs T. has lost her babe it was buried a week to morrow its complaint was an enlargement of the heart - I went to the funeral she asked me to come. You may remember it was called for me. They want the whole figure - I united to the grave with Hosea Perkins. Mercia holds on to the cause better than I expected. She gave up to towards printing the circular as the united were to distribute herself. and was so desirous
